

It was definitely an experience of my lifetime. The time I spent with the core team will always be in the best moments of my college life. I am sure, the things I got to learn while I was an official part of NSS team I couldn't have learned from elsewhere. Although people generally see NSS as a group of people indulged in community service, but a person who has been an integral part of NSS like me sees it in an altogether different way. I am grateful that I got to be in such a body which gave me a taste of professionalism, showed me how a team works while balancing friendships and work ethics. As every journey has its ups and downs mine had too, with a plethora of amazing experiences. Lastly but most importantly, to be able to do something for the community would certainly be in proudest moments of my life.
